I am deeply troubled as I consider the implications of this proposed tax increase. It feels like a heavy blow aimed squarely at those who are often the most vulnerable among us: first-time homebuyers dreaming of their first step on the property ladder, hardworking families striving for a more secure future, our cherished seniors on fixed incomes, and all the households already navigating the choppy waters of a difficult economy, burdened by high interest rates and a scarcity of available homes. At a moment when our collective focus should be on fostering opportunity and providing a sense of stability, this measure feels like a step in the wrong direction. It risks pushing the dream of homeownership further out of reach for many and adding another layer of worry to already strained budgets. It's hard not to feel a deep concern for the impact this will have on our community and the lives of so many individuals and families at a time when many are already suffering. Charles County should not add to the burden of it's residents an therefore should vote NO on this measure.
